

Foreword

Grasas y Aceites has been published for the last fifty years. We would like to celebrate this event by offering to our subscribers this special issue. It has been designed as a review of some interesting subjects on edible oils and fats. The contributions have been written by well known experts on each field. Grasas y Aceites thanks all of them the inestimable dedication to this project. We are proud of presenting this volume which gathers an invaluable up-date of such subjects. We also are indebted to Dr. Belton, member of our Scientific Advisory Board, for his help as co-editor of this issue and to Dr. Aparicio, member of our Editorial Board, for his efficient collaboration on the selection of subjects and contributors.

We hope that the clear exposition and the high scientific level of its contents may deserve the interest and attention of our readers.
